

Red Dirt Soil Builders!

Volunteers composting waste to build healthy soils for our gardens!

Meetings: Saturdays, 9 a.m. – 12:00 noon

(Please call ahead in case of inclement weather.)

Urban Harvest is recruiting a new class of “Red Dirt Soil Builders” to start in February 2011. Last year’s class has “graduated,” and we are seeking dedicated individuals who would like to spend Saturday mornings with us learning about various types of composting.

The new group will spend the first five Saturday mornings in a classroom setting for the first hour and then move outside for practical application to compost spoiled, damaged or out of date food from the Food Bank facility. After the first five Saturdays, volunteers will assist with composting for as long as they desire to help and learn by practical experience.

Schedule:

- | | |
|------------------------|----------------------------------------------------|
| February 5: | Orientation and Group Sign-up |
| February 12 – March 5: | Composting Class followed by Practical Application |
| March 12 – June 25: | Practical Application |
| June 25: | Graduation and Appreciation Luncheon |

To register or learn more, contact Bruce Edwards, Urban Harvest Director, at 405-604-7108 or bedwards@regionalfoodbank.org.

*“Fighting Hunger...
Feeding Hope”*

